IRS Plans new 990 by January 1

According to ASAE's Inroads, the IRS has targeted rolling out it's new 990 form by this December.

ASAE has attempted to slow down this process in the hopes that the new form will be as good as it can be and in the spirit of minimizing, where possible, the burden on non profit organizations.

The IRS wants to get the new form out so they can start capturing more information about non profits, their compensation packages and lobbying efforts, among other things.

It is not clear what affect the new form will have on our associations [in the states] but you can be sure that they will want much more disclosure than we are providing now.

How about Canada? Do you have a publication by CSAE that highlights Parliamentary issues?

League Update - GCEA

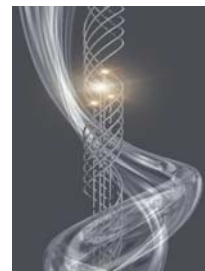

We received a nice note from Terry Eibel, Executive Director, Greater Cincinnati Electrical Association. Terry retired from Duke Energy and subsequently accepted the position of Executive Director. He has served on the GCEA board for 25 years. John Schoenfeld is Assistant Director and is phasing out his duties slowly. Terry remembers being a member of ILEA when Don Davis was director. Anyone remember Don?

Philly Show this week!

The Electrical Association of Philadelphia Trade Show will take place Tuesday and Wednesday, October 16-17, in the Valley Forge Convention Center Northeast of Philadelphia. Executive Director Dwight Price announced at the Conference that they will be using a new registration system.

We will all be waiting to hear how the show went and we hope the registration process is flawless! I'm sure we will learn more about it in San Francisco!

Busy Month for Trade Shows

In addition to Philly, the Electric League of the Pacific Northwest is holding their Electric League Expo & Conference October 17-18; the International Electrical Contractors are holding their 50th Annual IEC National Convention and Exhibit Expo in Houston October 24-27; the British Columbia Electrical Association is holding the BCEA Electrix 2007 in Victoria October 25; and the Electric League of Indiana is hosting the Indiana Electrical EXPO '07 on November 7.

Good luck to all!
